YOUTH CONFESSES TO THRILL MURDER OF 9

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Even the most quiet and unassuming objects revolt at times. A press report from Susanville states that a pop corn wagon blew up there and injured several school children. The worm will turn, you know.

It didn't help him much, but he let the world know how he felt about it. We refer to the Berkeley man who dressed in his wife's clothing and then ended his life. The dressing in women's clothing before ending his life was a protest against women holding positions in the business world. The victim of his own moody moment ended his life because he was unable to find work.

Now E. B. Bull tries to make us believe that he is all peeved at us because we wrote a story saying that he was a wonderful speaker. We repeat that we think Ed is all there when it comes to throwing the King's english around, even if it does arouse his wrath. Can you imagine a real estate man objecting to publicity that doesn't come at so much per inch? Verily we believe that our friend Ed is getting entirely too modest.

And another apparently charmed life could not withstand the rigors of flying in the far north. The finding of Carl Ben Eielson's body in the wreckage of his plane in the north has ended a hunt of several months. Eielson was killed while on a rescue mission to take food to a stranded ship held fast by the northern ice.

Now who started all this. But, a Chicago jury has decided that a man may make love to his own wife in the dim light of a motion picture theater if he so desires. The wife of the couple, barred from the theater for their conduct by the management, has just been awarded $1250 in a damage suit.

Tomorrow is George Washington's birthday anniversary, and most every business establishment in this city will be closed. Housewives are warned to do their shopping early or father and the children are liable to go hungry for a day or two.

And just a word of warning to our friends. The RECORD-HERALD will observe the holiday and no paper is to be published Sunday morning. If you have any news that you want the world to know about, it should be turned in today. It's your last chance until Monday.

It's a great satisfaction to see the officials tightening up on aviation rules and abolishing the flying in old obsolete crates. Some of us who had the "fortune?" of bumping around in some of the old ships of the war days because we had to do it can appreciate this most. Flying will only become safe when those actively engaged in it make up their minds to make it so.

POISON USED IN SLAYING OF EIGHT

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 20—(U.P.)—A little, colorless sort of a man, still not 30 years old, confessed to police here tonight that he murdered nine persons "for the fun of it."

Eight of them, said James Baker, he killed with poison so that he could enjoy their suffering. The first man he killed, Baker explained, was his father-in-law, whom he shot to death.

"That's what started me, I guess," he said. "It was my first murder and after that I simply couldn't resist the impulse to kill every once in a while."

Maniacal Crimes

Baker was arrested specifically for questioning in the poison slaying of James Gaw, night watchman for the Guggenheim Laboratories in New York, Dec. 28, 1928. Police characterized the killing of Gaw as one of the most maniacal crimes in New York's history.

Gaw was found dead in a chair. Before him was a half drained cup of coffee. Analysis revealed that the dregs were saturated with cyanide, a violent poison.

"Sure I killed Gaw," Baker told police. "He was the last one."

Baker said that after he had slain his father-in-law in Warren, Ohio, he ran away from home, studied chemistry, and finally took a seafaring job.

Carried Poison

"I always was interested in poisons and always carried some with me," he continued. "One day in a sailors' restaurant in Houston, Texas, I sat next to a man drinking coffee. Suddenly I felt I wanted to see him die. When he turned his head I dropped some poison in his coffee. He drank and almost immediately dropped dead. Later I learned his name was Honeycutt.

"After that I poisoned a sailor in Hamburg, Germany, and a Hindu at Bombay. I also killed a man with poison in the Philippines. Then, on a Standard Oil tanker out of Bayonne, N. J., I put poison in the coffee of the crew. Twelve

DOWNFALL OF NEW FRENCH CABINET SEEN

PARIS, Feb. 20—(U.P.)—Camille Chautemps, member of the young school of politics, accepted the task of forming a new cabinet tonight with full knowledge that he must exercise all his shrewdness and tact to succeed.

President Gaston Doumergue chose Chautemps, president of the radical socialists, for the premiership after Andre Tardieu, overthrown Monday night, declined to succeed himself.

Chautemps first asked Tardieu to be his minister of marine, so that the former premier could continue to head the French naval delegation at London. In the same breath he offered to permit Andre Maginot to remain as minister of war.

His next act was to induce Aristide Briand, veteran of many cabinets, to accept a portfolio, presumably that of foreign affairs.

Tardieu and Briand lunched together and talked the matter over. Later Tardieu and Maginot turned Chautemps down.

Briand, on the other hand, accepted the offer, and Chautemps, after consulting radical party leaders, notified the president he would take the cabinet-forming job.

He admitted however, that the situation was "delicate," and that he might have difficulty aligning enough political groups to assure himself a working majority of 260 votes in the chamber.

The socialists were not likely to participate actively in the government but they might be induced to support a ministry headed by Chautemps. Observers however, believed his cabinet could not last long and that Tardieu would emerge from the picture with increased prestige.

If Chautemps succeeded in creating a cabinet he was believed certain to take both the premiership and the ministry of interior for himself.

Egatook was stricken several days ago with fever after he had suffered an accident in a blizzard and had both arms and one leg frozen. He barely managed to crawl back to his hut near Churchill, and his white friends decided he must have aid of physicians to survive. So the journey was started by dogsled with Young Bud Stewart guiding the dogs through the snow drifts.

Shortly after noon the sled completed an 800 mile trek and met a special train sent to the end of the Hudson Bay railway beyond Mile 327.

The special train, according to word from Mile 327 arrived there about five hours after the regular weeqly passenger train had left for the south. Hudson Bay officials said the special would overtake the regular train sometime early Friday and that Egatook would arrive here Friday afternoon.

BECKER DEFIES JURY IN GRAFT CHARGES

2 DEPUTIES PUT BACK ON DUTY

OAKLAND, Feb. 20—Startling new disclosures in the Oakland paving and "bribe" scandal came thick and fast today, following charges made by Fred Smith, "key" witness yesterday.

Sheriff Burton Becker, accused by Smith as being the recipient of "bribe" money issued a flat denial of the charge, and as a gesture of defiance, reinstated two deputies who had been suspended following testimony before the grand jury that they had accepted "protection" money.

The deputies, Jack Collier and J. L. Davis, Becker explained, were engaged in tracing the murderer of Nick Tralla, and would be of more use to the county, reinstated that inactive.

The deputies also made flat denials of the charges brought against them.

Others Accused

Smith's charges, embodied in an affidavit held by District Attorney Earl Warren, in addition to charging Becker with accepting bribe money, declared that Commissioner W. H. Parker had entered into a deal to share the operations of a paving company, and hit at three of Becker's deputies.

It was reported that there was a general scurrying toward Warren's office today of men who know the inside of the Oakland paving "graft" but until now have refused to talk.

It was understood today that a number of these men are now prepared to go before the grand jury Monday and make a clean breast of the affair, both in the paving conditions and other charges preferred by Smith, E. Q. Norman, and Fred Haase.

New Charges

Warren and Smith were in conference all day today, and sensational new charges are said to have been made by Smith.

Smith in his affidavit, named Cromwell Ormsby, former council for Aimee Semple McPherson, as the "go-between" for Chinese lotteries in Emeryville, who paid Smith $4200 which he declares he passed on to Sheriff Becker.

Deputy District Attorney Ralph Hoyt issued a subpoena ordering Ormsby before the grand jury on Monday.

Smith is expected to be the first witness called before the grand jury Monday, and it is said will bring out information not touched upon in his earlier charges.

22 LEPERS ESCAPE IN HONOLULU

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 20—(U.P.)—Doomed to probable life banishment from relatives and friends, 22 lepers escaped from Kalihi receiving hospital late today.

Health authorities immediately began rounding up those who had fled, although there were no fears of dire consequences, since leporsy is now regarded by most physicians as no more contagious than tuberculosis.

By 6 p. m. eight of those who had escaped had been located.

The 22 lepers rebelled when they were informed they would be taken to the permanent leper settlement at Kalaupapa on the Island of Molokai.

One of them, who was later captured by police, said they had not been informed until 1 p. m. that they were leaving at 5 p. m., which gave them little opportunity to see relatives and make preparations for the departure.

The Kalihi receiving hospital is where all persons having symptoms of leporsy are observed and treated. Frequently victims in the early stages of the disease are discharged after treatment without having to go to Kalaupapa where all confirmed lepers of the Islands, numbering several hundred, are concentrated.

Rarely are persons sent to Kalaupapa discharged.

A few months ago the territorial board of health passed a rule that Kalihi hospital inmates who were consigned to the Kalaupapa settlement would be given no advance notice. In the past a notice of one week or ten days was customary and the new action was necessary because frequently persons facing banishment escaped after the notice.

COOLIDGES WATCH FISH

AVALON, Catalina Island, Feb. 20.—UP—Calvin Coolidge, fisherman, went out in a glass bottomed boat today and got a glimpse of the home life of the fish he delights in catching.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, the former president of the United States came here from the mainland shortly before noon as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Wrigley, Jr.

Only a few people were waiting at the dock when they arrived, the population of the island at this season not being up to its summer growth.

A short time later, the Coolidges went for their trip over the submarine gardens. Coolidge seemed intensely interested in the view through the bottom of the boat, both he and Mrs. Coolidge expressing amazement at what they saw.

With them were Mr. and Mrs. Wrigley, George Reynolds, Chicago banker, and Mrs. Reynolds.

After returning from the boat trip, the party went to the beautiful Wrigley summer home. The Coolidges probably will return to Los Angeles tomorrow.

GRIM SCENE AS HOUR NEARS

FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 20—(U.P.)—At dawn tomorrow, Mrs. Eva Dugan, 52-year old mother, will don the silken shroud she sewed in her prison cell and walk to the gallows that the state of Arizona may take her life for a murder.

She was convicted of slaying A. J. Mathis, a Tucson rancher, for whom she worked as a housekeeper. A long and desperate fight to keep her from being the first women ever to be hanged in Arizona failed when a jury decided Wednesday that she is sane.

Mrs. Dugan kept her own death watch in a silence seemingly intensified by the cheap timepiece bound to her wrist.

Thirteen Steps

"Four o'clock and thirteen hours more," she said in a husky voice.

"And after that, there's thirteen steps."

The death march will begin at 5 a. m.

Mrs. Dugan will die in lonliness. She has had five husbands, one of whom is living. She received a letter from her daughter in New York today, the first communication she had from either of her two children, and it brought tears to her eyes. No relatives are here.

Even as death approaches, Mrs. Dugan can smile grimly while tears course down her cheeks.

Daughter Sorry

"My daughter says she is sorry for every cross thing she ever said to me," the condemned woman wept.

Mrs. Dugan will be executed in a small, drab room, that permits of about 25 witnesses. It is on the second floor of the prison, above the condemned cells.

Her body will drop through a trap to the room below. In the latter, a glass case on three of the four walls contains the pictures of the 16 persons who died there at a rope's end—all men.

Grim Frame

Around each photo is a grim frame—the noose on which each man died.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Not Even Clubwomen Can Reform Husbands!

WHEN in Colonial days America's first feminist, Mistress Anne Hutchinson, organized the first women's club,
Governor John Winthrop of Massachusetts commented, dourly,
"Hence many families were neglected and much time lost"—
And, ever since, some hundred per cent. males have been saying the same thing!
The latest in the line of peeved protestants against the woman's club
Is—appropriately—a countryman of Mussolini,
Who may share Il Duce's well known views
About keeping women in their place—
Woman's place, according to Mussolini, is "to stay in the home, stay in the house,
"Attend to our children and give us
"The womanly and spiritual guidance of which men have need"—
Though, as Mrs. Philip Snowden has asked, how can Mussolini expect all that
Of a sex which he describes as "amusing, romantic, credulous little animals,
"Quite happily if a man says 'I love you'"?
Now comes Dr. Bruno Roselli of the Italian Department at Vassar to assure two thousand New York clubwomen
That "the hours and days which the American woman devotes to bridge parties and club meetings
"Could better be given to the care of her husband."
His argument is that in the United States woman's outside activities,
Her freedom and her response to cultural stimuli which she meets while her husband stays at work, to provide for her,
Lead her inevitably to a point where she is more educated than he.
The only remedy, Dr. Roselli declares, is for the wife
To spend more time with the husband and to educate him—
To reform him by being with him more.
And how, dear Dr. Roselli, do you suppose the husbands would like that?—
Even if it could be done—which it can't?
Not even a clubwoman can—or should—reform a husband.
And to blame her club for her failure as a conjugal reformer,
Is about the farthest in far-fetched criticism.
We are convinced that the only way for any woman
To have an intelligent, cultivated husband
Is to marry that kind, in the first place!
Of course, it's the nicest kind there is
For the woman who is herself a cultivated person.
But real culture cannot be laid on from outside—
The man who likes musical comedies better than any entertainment in the world
Cannot be educated by his wife to like grand opera—
Many an attempt, along that line, has merely made two persons uncomfortable!
The American woman, Dr. Roselli complains, should spend with her husband
The "hours and days" she spends at clubs!
And how?—And we mean it!
By what magnet can she attract him away from his office?
Any wife knows that she's doing well, and playing in luck,
If she can persuade her husband, two or three times a month,
To come home an hour early.
Or should she follow him officeward.
And read Keyserling aloud to him, between dictations and conferences?
If Dr. Roselli knew more about the women's clubs which he castigates so cheerfully
He would know that practically all their meetings are daytime affairs,
And that, when they do have an evening party,
Husbands are invited—yea, nagged and dragged—to attend!
Another commonplace is that, thanks to modern improvements in housekeeping,
The home woman, without small children, has many free afternoon hours—
Why should she not spend some of them at her clubs?
We don't belong to clubs—or, rather, we don't go to them,
And we don't pay bridge,
simply because it interests us more to do a daily column.
But we certainly think that club activities
Are more amusing, interesting and stimulating to great numbers of women
Than the pickles and patchwork with which earlier generations filled their hours.
Women's clubs have their faults,
But we agree with Fannie Hurst
That their "organized thinking and organized activities mean progress and further emancipation,"
And that "the woman who does not reach outside her home,
"Who devotes her entire time to her family,
"Superimposes her limitations on her husband and family."
Why, we don't believe that, to-day, even a poll of husbands
Would vote against women's clubs—
Unless and until clubwomen take Dr. Roselli's bad advice
And try to "educate and reform" their luckless spouses!

THE OLD TRICK

That old trick of yours,
Of which I shall not tell,
I shall remember well
If my dead soul endures
In Heaven or in Hell.

Either in Hell or Heaven,
Or out of Time and Space,
In a new state or place,
If any life is given,
I shall recall your face.

Your face I shall recall
And that old trick of yours
While a million years crawl
In Time's slow funeral—
If my dead soul endures.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

IF "HARD TIMES" have struck you, is it not because you have taken it easy during the past few years? Have you not been "letting down" a bit?

If, for the purpose of argument, we admit that finances in this country are not what they should be, is it not an individual matter with each person in these United States? To make things better is it not necessary for each person to work a bit harder during 1930?

If people would use the same energy in working that they take in bemoaning "hard times" we would get along faster.

THINKING "hard times" is bad enough, let alone talking about the situation, if it really exists.

Modernizing the Home

Schemes Suitable for Small Rooms

Dear Miss Zaiss:

There is a very small room in my apartment which I would dearly love to have you help me arrange. It is a little space off the living room of a rather old-fashioned apartment. I thought I would make some sort of a den or sitting room of it as it is in plain view of the living room. It is almost as long as the living room, but only eight feet wide. Could you do anything with that?

I will try to draw a diagram. I have nothing in the room at present. What would you suggest? Walls and woodwork are cream, and in the living room I have a taupe rug. Should I put the same kind in the den?

Also, please tell me where is the best place for my baby grand player piano in the living room, and what kind of scarf to use on it. Colors in that room are rose taupe rug; printed linen drapes, with a number of nice rich colors on tan; a deep rose sofa and a gray-green mixture cloth on the big chair. Please correct this room, if it isn't asking too much, but what I want most is suggestions for the den.

Correct Background and Furniture in Scale Answer Problem

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

A TINY room that seems too hopelessly out of proportion to be made comfortable and homelike? Many, many of us find such a nook in the family in these days of compact living, when entire households are often fitted into three or four rooms and a half. And the problem of attractive furnishing has its answer—as all difficulties in decoration do.

The first step in the right direction is taken when we refuse to recognize limitations. With a little encouragement the imagination can invent countless ideas that make for beauty on a miniature scale.

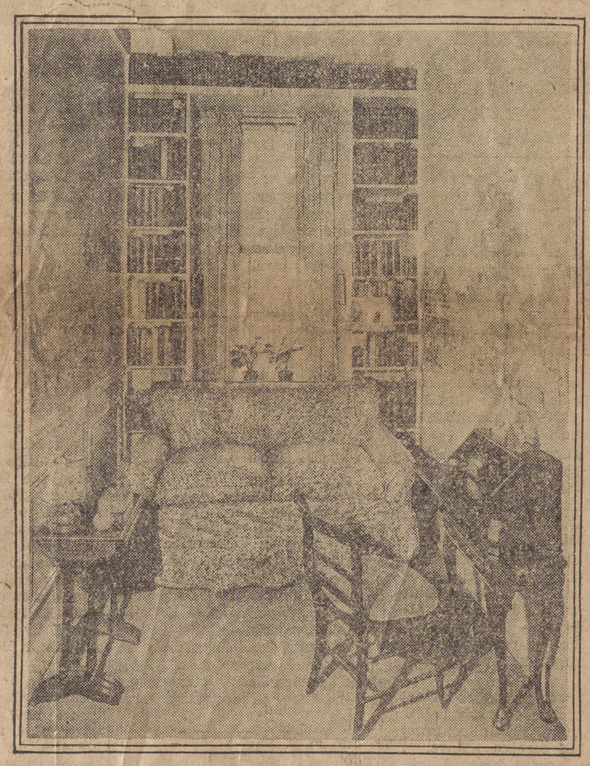
Of great importance is the background of the very small room, and although Mrs. M.'s room has plain ivory walls, we suggest going to the small expense of decorating them, if the scheme outlined has an especial appeal for her. Otherwise her ivory walls will do.

In small rooms certain treatments rather bring the walls down upon us, while others spread them far apart in effect. A scenic paper that gives a vista through arched gateways or down a winding road, with trees and sky above, creates the illusion of space and is one solution for this problem. We see it handled with fine understanding in the small room illustrated. For all its restricted dimensions this tiny spot is as dignified and as charming from a decorative standpoint as though it were three times its size.

As important, too, as the treatment of walls is the fine sense of proportion shown in the choice of furniture, which is in perfect scale for the room; and likewise the good judgment displayed in the matter of shelves for the books. Quite a sizable library is housed in the window end of this room, where painted shelves extend the full length of the window and join each other overhead. These are all good furniture suggestions for Mrs. M. Another good piece is the shallow corner cupboard indicated on the diagram at the far end of the room. This would balance the tall shelves opposite, the while providing nice storage space for many decorative trifles.

For the floor a plain all-over carpeting would also give an impression of space, and in the interest of greater unity, Mrs. M. should repeat the taupe carpet of the living room in the den.

It would seem that a small sofa or love seat before the window would prove most restful and inviting. If plain curtains are used behind the sofa, its covering could be merely a well-tailored slip of some smart figured fabric, welted in a plain color, and the same material may be used for the easy chair to the right of the entrance. If the design of the printed linen curtains in the living room is not too large and forceful, it may be suitable for the covers here. The fabric shown in the illustration is well chosen in that it makes use of design and color without creating confusion. In a small room with patterned walls a definitely patterned sofa would seem almost unbearable.



A LIBRARY, A WRITING ROOM, A COMFORTABLE SPOT FOR LOUNGING—THIS LITTLE SETTING FILLS ALL THREE REQUIREMENTS WITHOUT CROWDING.

The furniture in the setting is, of course, antique and the entire scheme echoes the spirit of a fine old home of generous proportions. And therein is the particular lesson of the picture. It is not always necessary to possess spacious rooms in order to create the feeling of such an environment.

A very different though equally successful room might be planned around a modern scheme, helped to fulfilment by the adaptability of modernist furniture.

A modern paper in shaded tones

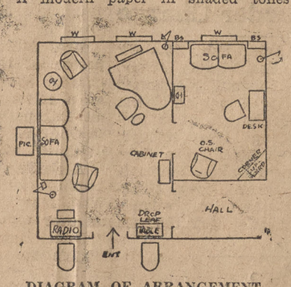


DIAGRAM OF ARRANGEMENT

would be effective for the walls; or Japanese woodblock paper might be used as a neutral background against which to show modern fabrics for slipcovers and draperies.

Instead of the diminutive desk, illustrated, a certain modern piece which resembles a shallow cabinet, but turns itself into an ample desk when the top panel is lowered, would prove convenient and commodious, since its lower section contains both storage room and drawers.

Modern lamps, a table or two, a few well chosen ornaments and modern pictures would complete the room and give us a charming retreat instead of the cramped little nook which oversized furniture and a less carefully planned scheme would make of it.

A third means of suggesting greater space might be carried out by choosing plain, light tones for the walls and woodwork; colorful draperies of interesting design; plain or self-patterned slip-cover fabric repeating a color prominent in the draperies. Then use on each long wall a large, plain, unframed mirror—than which there is no more certain way to multiply space and repeat by reflection the colors and interesting objects gathered together in a tiny room.

The diagram shows our suggested arrangement of Mrs. M.'s living room pieces. We have added a low, shallow bench before the radio and a new open-arm chair and small table to be placed in the curve of the piano. If the cabinet holding the music rolls is a good-looking piece, with its compartments concealed behind panels or doors, it may go in the space indicated on the diagram. If it is a homely piece, with player rolls in plain view, it should have a more inconspicuous location. We would use a pair of mirrors on the entrance wall, one above the radio and one above the dropleaf table.

The color scheme of the room sounds quite soft and pleasing, and it would seem that no changes are necessary at this time. Lamp bases of dull green pottery with plain shades of honey-colored silk or skin are suggested for small tables, and notes of green should be found in ornaments about the room. A fine color reproduction of an old architectural painting would be effective above the sofa, and for the piano scarf a square of lovely old brocade in harmonious colors would seem to fit charmingly into the general scheme.

This seems to be all we can do for Mrs. M. at this writing—enough, it seems, to give her two very comfortable and attractive rooms.

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

"YOU tell us," writes a pessimistic modern, "that to be charming and beautiful we must first be serene. We must relax. But please, would you mind telling us how we can possibly relax or be serene either in this age of bewildering complexities and incredible speed and ghastly go-getting?"

FRANCES OLIVIER

Despite the rhetorical question—O, yes, it is, my dear!—we think we are able to offer you the key to serenity, and the short-cut to relaxation. Yes, even in our harrowing age of haste, even with the responsibility of a big job and a little home and the necessity of riding to and fro in the suffocating subway. Hear ye music!

And we don't mean jazz. Jazz is perfect—in its place. But to educe dreams, to touch ecstasy, to bathe in serenity, we must go back to Beethoven and to Brahms. Attend to the symphony, my friend. Go to the better musicales. Often, lie in the dark and tune in on the rarer sort of radio concerts. You won't have to try to relax or practice being serene. Before you are even aware of it you will be relaxing and you will have attained complete serenity.

There is only one condition, a very, very obvious one, to be sure—it is essential that you have a taste for music. We hope you have it. From something in the tone of your letter, we rather feel you have it. However, a taste for fine music is cultivatable. And certainly easier than taking lessons in relaxation or maybe attending classes in the study of serenity.

Moreover, merely learning to relax and be serene, while an excellent preventive of wrinkles and nervous rashes, is not one half so flattering to the facial expression as the habit of steeping one's self in exalted music. Under the spell of fine music even homely faces take on radiance and distinction. What then can't this sorcery do to a really good-looking face?

Maybe you won't like our prescription. It may perhaps sound a bit too visionary for you, too far removed from the things you would expect to find in a beauty column. But before you make up your mind in the matter, just give the advice a trial. For two months, let's say. Go on be sporting.

A Wallpaper Hint

MRS. A. lamented the fact that she could not have a cheery flowered paper in her room, because the walls were painted and paper would not stick.

One day somebody told her just a little treatment to that wall would make the paper adhere all right. So she followed directions. She scrubbed the walls with soapsuds, then thoroughly rinsed and dried them. She made sure that the paste she used in papering contained no alum. Then to a pailful of paste she added two ounces glycerine and three sheets of isinglass dissolved in two cupfuls of hot water.

That was a year ago and the paper shows no signs of peeling off.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Pale green jelly delicately flavored with fresh mint and mint sauce are traditional with lamb, particularly the roasting and broiling cuts.

Tiny individual moulds or cubes of the clear, green jelly, cool and refreshing, sometimes serve as a garnish to the sliced cold meat and poultry at the supper table, or to add color and flavor to the salad course. Foundationed upon apple or cider, the jelly belongs to the dessert type, while the jelly made with vinegar or lemon juice leans toward the relish type.

NANCY DORRIS.

By request, the two jelly recipes are printed to-day. The first will be the tart and the second the sweet.

MINT JELLY

One-half cup apple vinegar
One cup of water
Green coloring
Three and one-fourths cups sugar
One-half cup commercial pectin
One-half to one and one-half teaspoons peppermint or spearmint extract

Yield: four or five 8-ounce glasses

Instead of the vinegar and water as given above, substitute the juice of two lemons strained and mixed with one and one-half cups of water. The commercial pectin or jellying substance may be bought at the grocery store and the peppermint or spearmint extract either at the grocery or drug store.

Combine the vinegar with the water—or the lemon juice and water—and add enough coloring, drop by drop, to give the tint desired for the jelly. As coloring is concentrated, a very little gives sufficient depth as a rule. Mix the liquid with the sugar and stir until dissolved; place over fire and bring to a good boil.

Pour the pectin into the boiling liquid, stirring constantly; let come to a full rolling boil and boil one-half minute exactly. Remove the mixture from the fire and add the peppermint or spearmint extract, according to taste. Let stand one minute, skim and pour into hot, sterilized glasses.

Cover the hot jelly with a film of hot paraffin and let cool thoroughly. Then cover with one-eighth inch layer of hot paraffin and roll the glass to spread the paraffin on all sides. When set store in a cool place. At serving time unmould and serve thus, or cut into cubes, or serve individual squares in tiny paper cups.

For the sweet type of jelly the following recipe is suggested:

MINT JELLY

One pint sweet apple cider
Three and three-fourths cups sugar
Green coloring
One-half bottle commercial pectin
Peppermint or spearmint extract to taste

Yield: five eight-ounce glasses

Measure the sweet cider and sugar into the saucepan, stir until the sugar is dissolved, add coloring as desired and bring to a boil. Turn in the pectin and bring again to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil hard one full minute. Remove the jelly from the fire and let stand one minute; skim and pour quickly into hot sterilized glasses. Cover with the film of paraffin as above, and when cold with the one-eighth inch layer of paraffin. Store the finished jelly in a cool, dry place.

Sheenless Hosiery

BUY your stockings without sheen if you would be in the vanguard of the fashionable. For hosiery that somewhat resembles crepe is ultra smart, both for daytime and evening occasions. 'Tis said this type of stocking is more flattering to the ankle and also makes the hose appear more sheer than it really is. Stockings free from high lustre are more patrician than the flapper vogue of wearing them wrong side out. With the advent of spring seamless hosiery will return to fashion.

CURBING THE CRIME WAVE

JUSTICE is getting tough. A man in Boston is indicted for buying a pint of whiskey and a New York woman gets life imprisonment for shoplifting. The next case on the docket will be this:

JUDGE—The Government vs. Cecil McSweeney. Ready for trial?

DISTRICT ATTORNEY—Yes, Your Honor. Officer Gidney, take the stand.

(Officer Gidney mounts the witness stand and is sworn in.)

D. A.—Tell the court what happened on the afternoon of Jan. 31.

OFFICER—I was chasing a couple of gunmen up Wampus Street when I seen this defendant, Cecil McSweeney, spit on the sidewalk. I quit pursuing the yeggs and placed him under arrest.

D. A.—You are positive he expectorated on the sidewalk?

OFFICER—Positive! He was aiming for the gutter but it fell short.

JUDGE—Tsk, tsk, tsk! Another outbreak in our crime wave.

D. A.—Officer, what did the defendant say when you placed him under arrest?

OFFICER—He pleaded with me to let him go on account of his wife and seventeen kiddies, but I busted him on the conk with my club.

JUDGE—You did just right, Officer. Were there any extenuating circumstances?

OFFICER—Well, the prisoner said he'd been all afternoon in a speakeasy, spitting in cuspidors, and he forgot where he was.

JUDGE—No excuse at all. Bring the prisoner to the bar.

(Cecil McSweeney takes the witness stand.)

JUDGE—McSweeney, you're accused of spitting on the sidewalk. You know what spit is, don't you?

PRISONER—Yes, Your Honor. It's a horrible word.

JUDGE—Correct. Well, according to this indictment, you did knowingly and with premeditation and felonious intent expectorate saliva on the sidewalk of a public avenue, highway or thoroughfare on the afternoon of Jan. 31, Anno Domini 1930, so help you God. Now, did you or did you not?

PRISONER—Yes, Your Honor; I guess I did. I'd been chewing pepsin gum and my mouth was overflowing. I did my best to spit in the gutter, but my aim ain't what it used to be. It landed six inches this side of the curb.

JUDGE—Ah! You were chewing gum, too, eh? Compounding a felony. Did you spit the gum out, too?

PRISONER—No, Your Honor. When this cop bounced his nightstick on my bean I swallowed it.

JUDGE—A lucky thing for you. That is all.

PRISONER—Your Honor, please don't send me away. I have a wife and seventeen kiddies——

JUDGE—You should stay home with your wife and kiddies and do your spitting in the kitchen stove. Step down.

(Cecil McSweeney goes to the prisoners' pen.)

JUDGE—Any previous record for this man, Mr. District Attorney?

D. A.—Yes, Your Honor. (Reads prisoner's record.) Arrested for walking on the grass in Central Park, 1911, and found guilty. Convicted of purchasing a package of cigarets in Kansas, 1916, and sent to Leavenworth for six months. Indicted for feeding peanuts to the lions in the Bronx Zoo, 1921, and sentenced to one year at hard labor.

JUDGE—Hm-m-m. Just what I thought—a hardened criminal. We've got to put a stop to this orgy of crime that's poisoning the roots of this Nation. Cecil McSweeney, stand up. This Court finds you guilty of spitting on the sidewalk and sentences you to be hanged by the neck until dead the third week in March, so help you God. Court's adjourned! (Judge squirts a cud of tobacco out the side of his mouth which lands on the bailiff's shoe.)

Joan Peers Suggests Morning Beauty Hints

1 An old fashioned beauty aid, but a good one, is a cup of hot water before breakfast. Every morning I drink slowly one full cup of not too hot water as an eye-opener. After this routine, which takes exactly three minutes to perform, I do my morning limbering-up exercises.

2. Five minutes of deep breathing before an open window aids circulation, scatters any depressed feelings and makes one feel like a million dollars.

3. Another beauty hint from grandmother's book is that of touching the floor rapidly and with knees straight. This is an excellent preliminary exercise for shaking the muscles out of their sleepiness.

4. The final dose is a trick used by chorus girls for limbering up every muscle for arduous hours of dancing. Alternating with each limb, place the foot firmly on the back of a rather high backed chair. Holding the ankle with the corresponding hand, bend at the waist until the head touches the ankle. Slide up and down, touching ankle and head each time for at least five times.

13TH CHAIR TO CLOSE RUN TONIGHT

Spectres of the spirit world make their appearance in Tod Browning's first all talking picture, "The Thirteenth Chair," adapted from the well-known stage play by Bayard Veiller. The new Metro Goldwyn Mayer mystery film will be shown for last times today at the Fox-California theater.

Fantastic camera angles, shadow effects, uncanny sounds, weird scenes of scances in which tables move and mysterious events occur give movie goers a new sensation.

India furnishes a background for a sinister plot containing a murder, a struggle between mediums and detectives and other hair-raising sequences.

The principal role is effectively handled by Margaret Wycherly, who played the same part in the stage version. Bela Lugosi, who created the role of "Dracula" on the stage, plays the detective 'Delzante' of the Calcutta Secret Service. A romantic touch is given the uncanny picture by Conrad Nagel, as son of the Calcutta governor, and Leila Hyams, as the daughter of the medium.

A Charlie Chase talking comedy "Stepping Out" is also on the bill.

CAVALRY SEEN IN HIS FIRST COMMAND

The Second United States Cavalry, organized before the Civil War as the Second Dragoons, and the second oldest unit of American mounted troops is one of the regiments that takes part in the inspiring brigade review sequences in "His First Command," a Pathe dialogue picture, starring William Boyd, which will be on view at the Fox-California theater tomorrow.

Displaying on its colors battle standards won in every conflict in which the United States has taken part from the Indian wars to the World War, this proud regiment of troopers with the 13th Cavalry, appears in the first all color and sound scenes shot out doors for a dramatic picture production, the regiment is commanded now by Colonel A. R. Miller, while the 13th Cavalry is in command of Lieut. Colonel William Overton.

The colorful military ceremony of a brigade review, with dashing cavalrymen on spirited mounts, the flash of sabres, the brilliant colors of old glory and the regimental colors and the stirring martial music makes one of the most thoroughly inspiring spectacles ever seen and heard in sound pictures. This is part of the colorful background to one of the most effective stories in which Boyd has been starred in some time.

In the supporting cast of the Pathe star are Dorothy Sebastian, Paul Hurst, Alphonz Ethier, Howard Hickman, Helen Parrish, Rose Tapley, Gavin Gordon, Mabel Van Buren, and Jules Cowles. "His First Command" was directed and written by Gregory La Cava.

A Mickey Mouse Cartoon and talking comedy are also on the program.

MARTINEZ, Feb. 20—Trial of a $41,000 damage suit against the West Coast Theaters, Inc., filed by Robert Mayer, 10, and his father, William Mayer, of Richmond, will be resumed in the court of Superior Judge H. V. Alvarado tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The suit is the outcome of an accident that occurred at the California theater in Richmond on the night of May 6, 1926. The Mayer boy is alleged to have fallen from the balcony of the theater, suffering injuries for which he asks $25,000. The father asks an additional sum of $16,125.

Young Mayer was called to the stand this afternoon and recited what had happened the night of the accident. He declared that he had gone to the theater and he thought he must have fallen asleep, althoug he could not remember. He declared that he remembered that he had fallen, and had gotten up and had found his way out of the dark showhouse to the street, where he was picked up by a policeman and taken to the Abbott Emergency hospital.

Patrolman Frank Fray, of the Richmond police department, was called to the stand and testified that he had found the boy wandering upon the streets, his face badly cut. He testified that he had taken him to the emergency hospital.

Dan Reardon, assistant manager of the theater, was then called to the stand. He testified that on the night of the accident he and his assistant had made an inspection of the theater and declared that they had seen no one in the place. They then turned off the ligts, locked the doors and left, he said.

Mayer testified that he had gone to the theater on the night of May 6 and that his son had come in later in the evening. When the show was over, Mayer said, he didn't see the child in the theater and thougt he had gone home. A few hours later he was informed of the accident.

At this point in the testimony, the trial was adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Will Robenson is representing the Mayers in the action and J. F. Hoey is defending the suit for the theater company.

EIELSON BODY FOUND NEAR WRECK

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 20—(U.P.)—The Siberian Artic's most tragic epic ended tonight when wireless advices were received here that the body of Carl Ben Eielson, world noted aviator, had been found.

A terse radiogram from the fur-laden motorship Nanuk, ice-bound at North Cape, Siberia, said that the body of the famous flier was located day before yesterday near his wrecked plane on the frozen tundra.

"Ben's body found eighteenth," said the message signed by Joe Crosson, another well known flier who led the search. "Unable get information sooner. Was killed instantly. Body will be brought to North Cape tomorrow and taken to Fairbanks as soon as possible."

Mechanic Found

The body of Earl Borland, Eielson's mechanic, was discovered in a snowbank 100 feet from their smashed ship several days ago by a rescue party which braved bitter cold to leave the Nanuk with dog teams for the scene, 90 miles south.

The aviators soared away from Teller, Alaska, Nov. 9, 1929, to bring food and supplies to suffering members of the Nanuk's crew. The little motorship, hemmed in solidly by thick sheets of ice, had in her hold furs valued at more than $1,000,000. Eielson hoped to bring some of them back on his return trip. Instead, he ran into a blizzard before he reached the Nanuk, smashed to the ground and with his mechanic died instantly, probably on Nov. 10.

Eielson previously had achieved international fame as one of the few airplane pilots ever to explore both the Arctic and Antartic wastes. He was associated with Capt. George Wilkins in 1928, flying across the North Pole from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen. Later he accomplished a similar exploit with Commander Richard E. Byrd on the opposite side of the globe.

So accomplished a flier was the that rescue parties searched for months, with the Nanuk as a base in the belief that he would be found alive. Only when his plane splintered by the impact and with the engine 100 feet away from the fuselage, was located did hope for Eielson's safety dwindle.

His father, Ole Eielson, now enroute here from his home in Hatton, N. D. The body probably will be interred in the family plot there.

PITTSBURG C. C. HEARS TALK ON TAXES

Speaking before the Pittsburg chamber of commerce yesterday at its weekly luncheon gathering at Hotel Los Mendanos, J. D. Keith of Crockett, chairman of the educational committee of the Contra Costa division of the California Taxpayers' association, brought to the attention of the members present facts concerning constantly mounting taxes throughout the state and even the nation.

"The mounting burdens of taxation in some places are destroying the foundation values of real estate," declared Keith. "Let us hope that such a condition will not prevail in this county," continued Keith.

The speaker pointed out that the Contra Costa unit had been organized primarily for constructive research toward betterment of state and county government.

"To accomplish such constructive effort," said Keith, "we must call upon the support of every taxpayer of the county, and our county officials to work in hand to devise ways and means to solve this mounting problem."

An encouraging point brought out by Keith was that Contra Costa is one of the few counties in the state that could boast a lower county base rate for the current fiscal year, as against the previous one.

The meeting was well attended, with President George Murray presiding. Following Keith's talk, discussion followed as to the membership drive of the tax association in Pittsburg, with the idea of assisting the movement.

SPORTS

TRACK SEASON OPENS HERE NEXT WEEK

Track athletes at Richmond union high school are donning their spikes in preparation for the high school track season which will begin next week.

The local high school track season will open next Friday, when the annual inter-class track meet will be held. This has always been a major event in the year's sports at Richmond high, and a large number of sophomores, juniors,and seniors are always on hand to uphold the honor of their class.

For many years, the inter-class track title has been held by the seniors. However, the outlook is rather doubtful for this year's contest, for many of the stellar athletes in last year's track season at Richmond high were then members of the sophomore class. The boys who are expected to loom large for the senior cause in this year's meet are Schuyler Albert, miler; Roy Carson, hurdler and a neat tosser of the discus and shot; Paul Maloney, broad jumper; and Lawrence Dunleavy, discus hurler.

Among the former sophomores who will now compose the junior track squad are Bill Young, miler and half miler; John Babich, discus and short; Carl Drexel, half and quarter miler and Jack Stoddard, high jumper.

The caliber of the sophomore athletes has not yet been determined, but a large amount of new and promising material always comes to light in the sophomore class during the inter-class meets.

Several of the best track men to ever wear the local high school colors are missing from its ranks this year. Among these athletes of high school track fame last year were Nick Bracco, hurdler, pole-vaulter, sprinter and star relay man; Harley Long, polevaulter, broad jumper, sprinter and hurdler; Walt Gordon, quarter miler and broad jumper and Johnny Freese, pole vaulter, hurdler and sprinter.

A cross country run has also been planned for this years track season at Richmond high. The first run of this type, held last year, was tied by Schuyler Albert and Bill Young. More than 30 aspiring long distance runners were entered in the race to Bess Hill.

Several inter-school track meets are also being scheduled by Ed Owens, student athletic manager at the high school.

The high school athletes have been training in their track events for several weeks under the direction of Coaches Ivan W. Hill and Phil Hempler. Hempler was formerly a pole vaulter on the University of California track team.

The local high school track is now being put in condition for the coming season. It is being levied, rolled, and widened. Several more jumping pits are being constructed on the athletic field in front of the bleachers.

High Girls To Form Swim Class

Plans are being made at the Richmond Union high school to organize a girls' swimming club and inter-class girls' swimming competition.

Plans for the classes are being made under the direction of Mildred Cuthbertson, girls' physical education instructor at Richmond Union high school. The classes and inter-class swimming meets will be held every Tuesday afternoon at the Richmond Municipal natatorium.

Playing Games

MEMBERS OF the girls champion relay team practice their spring steps in zero weather on a wooden track 15 stories above the business district at Newark, N. J.

ALL STARS TO PLAY FINAL CAGE GAME

The date for the final contest of the Garfinkle All-Star cagers has been set for next Wednesday, instead of Thursday as formerly announced. Either the Richmond Y. M. I. or Hutton cagers of Oakland will furnish opposition to the Garfinkle All-Stars at that time.

A game of special interest will be played between the Richmond Y. L. I. and the Petaluma Spartan Girl cagers the same evening. The Spartans administered a severe defeat to the Oleum girls earlier in the season, and ought to give the local Y. L. I. five a hard battle.

The games will be played in the Richmond Union high school gymnasium.

Seppalla Leads Quebec Derby

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 20.—UP—Leonhardt Seppalla, winner of the 1929 Quebec dog derby established a slender lead over his rivals in today's heat of the 1930 race. Seppalla was seventh to leave the starting post but finished ahead of the field in 3:52:04.

Emil St. Goddard took second place, five minutes behind the leader.

The third American team driven by F. Fupuis finished today's lap in fourth place.

H. Chevrette was the leading Canadian entrant, taking third place, ten minutes behind Seppalla.

Jones Leads In Georgia Open Play

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 20.—UP—Bobby Jones, American open golf champion, started his 1930 links campaign in whirlwind fashion today, winning medal honors in Savannah's open golf tournament with a sparkling 67—seven under par—for the first 18 holes of the qualifying round.

Jones, who saw at least 12 men finish under par ahead of him, stroked his way calmly on the first nine for a 32, five under par. On the last nine he required a 35, two under par.

Emmett French of Southern Pines, N. C., and Jeff Adams of Savannah, were tied with 68's and led the field until Jones turned in his card.

Sharing with Jones in furnishing the day's features was "Wild Bill" Melhorn, who scored a hole-in-one, one of the few times this feat ever has been performed in open competition.

Today's round represented the first half of the 36 hole qualifying play. The qualifiers will be selected after play tomorrow. A 36-hole match Saturday completes the competition.

Y. M. I. Council Will Organize Baseball Club

At last night's meeting of Burke council, Y. M. I., a committee to organize a baseball team for the institute was appointed.

James W. Thompson was appointed chairman, and will be assisted by H. E. Alveraz, John F. Medro, P. Healy and Joseph Hirth.

The team when organized is intending to enter the Spaulding Winter league next fall. During the summer, the team will play independently.

Preparations were made to receive the grand president, Raymond P. Williamson and ihs staff of officers on March 6.

At this time a banquet will be served and entertainment provided.

Joseph Silva will be in charge of the banquet and W. E. Carey and Frank Rygen will furnish the entertainment.

U. C. WINS ICE HOCKEY TITLE

BERKELEY, Feb. 20—The University of California ice hockey team today holds its second California intercollegiate championship is as many years following victories over U. C. L. A. and Southern California last week-end on the ice of Yosemite valley. The Golden Bears brought home the President Hoover Winter Sports trophy as a reward for their efforts; as the first winners of the cup, they will retain it until the 1931 winter sports carnival is held at the national park.

Last year the first California hockey team in a three-game series with U. S. C. captured the title, repeating the performance against the two southern California teams last week-end by defeating U. S. C. 8 to 1 and U. C. L. A. 4 to 0.

The Bears have not ended competition with U. S. C., however, for on March 14 and 15 they will travel south to meet the Trojans at the Los Angeles Winnter Garden, with two games scheduled for the bay region with the Trojans the following week-end, Mar. 21 and 22.

Donald Murphy, forward, was high point man for the Yosemite tournament, netting six goals.

Capt. Jack Fingland, center, placed five in the cage, and Herbert Ellis, forward, accounted for the other score. Douglas Morrison, goalie, was given considerable credit for the victory over U. S. C. for a number of spectacular stops.

Six of the Bear skaters received medals as members of the winning team. They are Donald Murphy and Herbert Ellis, forwards; Capt. Jack Fingland, center; Geo. Watkins and Fred Taber, defense, and Douglas Morrison, goal tender.

Watkins, who ranks as one of the outstanding defense men, learned to skate this year, while Taber and Eills, both playing as regulars, got their first taste of skating last year, when the first team was organized.

The Bears are in the peculiar position of being able to win from any team in their class, but of necessity losing to club teams made up of players who have had long semi-professional experience in Canada or the east. Thus, their mediocre record against local club outfits is offset by their brilliant series of victories over other college sextets.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, Feb. 20.—UP—Four consecutive baskets in a five minute overtime period gave St. Mary's a 30 to 24 victory over the University of Nevada in a basketball game here tonight. Nevada had been leading 14 to eight, at half time but the Saints made it 22 all just before regular playing time ended.

HIGH CAGERS TO PLAY ALUMNI TONIGHT

The old and new will battle for supremacy in the Richmond Union high school alumni cage contest at the Richmond Union high school gymnasium.

The main event of the evening will be played between the Richmond high varsity and the R. U. H. S. alumni varsity at 9 o'clock. The B game will start at 7 o'clock and will be followed by a girls' contest.

College athletes will be sprinkled generously through the ranks of the alumni quintet in tonight's battle with the "boys they left behind them." The alumni heavyweights will be captained by Ernie Barbieri, who has been a leading light in St. Mary's college athletics. Cal Pitchford, St. Mary's basketball captain, is expected to play at guard for the alumni. Muth, Cornell and Dyer, all of whom starred in athletics at high school, will complete the alumni aggregation tonight.

Practice On

Tackling such a formidable and experienced group of athletes will be a mighty hard job for the Richmond Union high school varsity players to face tonight. An extra stiff week of practice has been undergone by the high school boys in an attempt to bring their standard to a par with the older and more experienced alumni.

The Richmond high varsity boys who will probably see action tonight are: Viano, Masek, Roveda, Myers, forwards; Kenny, Passoni, McCain, Hoeffer, centers; Scarcella, Brock, Drexel, and Harlow, guards.

An equally fast contest is expected to be played between the high school and alumni B quintets. The Alumni B lineup will include: Marcos, Melin, Linstedt, Page, Majanni, forwards; Flynn, Black, center; Sassone, Oishi and Craig, guards. They will probably be captained by Erwin Marcos.

High Lineups

The boys who will play with the high school B team are: Marcu Rollino, Johnson, Snodgrass, Boschetti, forwards; A. Wilson, T Wilson, centers; James Sanfilippo, Rogers, Matteucci, R. Miller and Conn, guards.

The Richmond Union high school girls will be confronted with an especially strong squad of alumni girl cagers, most of whom have played with the Richmond Y. L. I. The Y. L. I. quintet has a long record of decisive victories to their credit, and will certainly give the high school girls the best battle of the year.

The members of the alumni girls' team will probably be: Cecelia Desmond, Frances Perricone, Helen Maloney, Irma Chattleton, forwards; Elaine Mueller, Louise Novarini, Alice Maloney, centers; Gladys Kruger, Helen Gately and Evelyn McLaughlin, guards.

Band To Play

The girls who will play for Richmond high tonight are: Gertrude Heise, Helen McDonald, Dorothy Boswell, Madeline Deboli, forwards; Edith Pucci, Olive Atten, Doris Nystrom, Emily Lilly, centers; Lucille Morrill, Nelly Adams, Muriel Pace and Julia Robbins, guards.

The halves of the B and girls' games will be alternated. The first half of the B game will start at 7 o'clock, and the first half of the girls' game will be played during the boys' half time rest period. The last half of the B contest will be immediately followed by the final period of the girls' clash.

The Richmond Union high school band will play at the games under the direction of George Morris.

Tennis Gains In Favor At High

An attempt is being made at the Richmond Union high school of interest the girls of the high school in tennis. Hazel Olsen of the high school faculty has offered to coach aspiring girl tennis players on the city hall courts each Tuesday afternoon.

Tennis has formerly taken a rather unimportant position at Richmond high, but it is expected that it will become as popular as basketball, baseball, or hockey with the girl athletes.

Two Thomas Players Will Join Missions

Doyle Taylor, 17 year old twirler for the Thomas Motors, and Babe Panella, first bagger for the Motorist's nine, will report for action at Stockton when the Missions go into training there.

Taylor seemed an especially fine prize to the Mission scout who interviewed him immediately after the famous victory of the Motors over the San Pablo nine in the Oakland Winter league. The real talent of this 17 year old Richmond Union high school student came to the top in that contest.

Taylor is a left hander, and throws a wicked curve. He may be judged a trifle young by the Mission managers. However, if he shows up well at the training camp at Stockton, he will be sent to an Arizona team to develop his prowess to the fullest extent.

"Babe" Panella's rise to the Coast league was long expected by local baseball fans in view of Panella's performance on first base. He is also a member of the Thomas Motors aggregation. He was with the Pittsburgh Pirates last spring but was not taken east with that club.

Panella throws and bats right handed. He is six feet tall, and his weight is 180 pounds. He is 20 years old.

Honor Society Plans Banquet

Members of the Richmond Union high school Honor society will gather at a "basketball" banquet in the high school cafeteria tonight immediately preceding the Alumni game.

Talks having basketball as their theme will be given by members of the society during the dinner.

The tables will be decorated with a motif appropriate to the basketball season that will end at the high school tonight.

The arrangements for the banquet are in the hands of Ernest Peters, president of the organization.

Following the dinner, the Honor society members will attend the Alumni games, which begin at 7 o'clock. The dinner will start at 5:30 o'clock.

Yanks To Leave Today For Camp

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.— UP— Bat bags and uniform trunks owned by the New York Yankees were packed today ready for tomorrow's southern departure of he 25 players headed by Manager Bob Shawkey.

The Ruth-less Yanks will entrain for their camp at St. Petersburg where earnest spring practice will get under way next week.

Departure of the vanguard of players brings nearer the inevitable agreement of Col. Jake Ruppert, Yankee club owner, and Babe Ruth, champion home run hitter.

Ruth has not signed a proffered one-year contract calling for $75,000. Nor have the Yankees agreed to meet Ruth's demands for $85,000 per year on a two-year basis.

Baseball experts are certain the fuss will be settled in time for Ruth to engage in a full season. The Bam has been quoted as having said that he will practice with the Yanks anyway.

White Sox Wait For Dutch Henry

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 20.—UP—The White Sox are awaiting the arrival of Dutch Henry, the ex-Giant who has been reported en route since Monday. He is the only member of the Sox who is overdue.

Art Shires has promised faithfully to report Sunday to talk over his contract with Comiskey.

White Given Odds In Bout At Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—UP—Old Charlie White, who began his ring career when Sammy Mandell, present lightweight champion, was born 25 years ago, is "fit as a fiddle" for the fight tomorrow night which he hopes will start him along the "come-back" trail.

Charlie's initial come-back effort will be against Henry Perlick, one of the twins, and despite his 39 years (he's at least that old) White has been made the favorite.

Although, like all sport figures, White probably will conclude eventually that "they never come back" there seems good reason to believe that this man who has fought 12 champions still is good enough to whip many of the present day lightweights.

The favoritism toward him is the result of Charlie's activity in the gymnasium during the past week. His old left hook which had such men as Benny Leonard, Freddy Welsh and many of the other good lightweights of that period on the floor appears as good as ever. Of course, the legs have slowed but his general physical condition seems uncanny. So perfect was his condition when he began training for this fight that he weighed only 138 pounds—just one half pound more than he weighed that night eight years ago when he knocked out Bobby Barrett, hung up his gloves and said he was going to quit the ring a winner.

Y. M. C. A. Cage Game Postponed

The Y. M. C. A. Californiad semi-finals between the Richmond unlimited cagers and the San Jose five scheduled last night was postponed until next Monday night. The contest will be played in the San Jose Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

The Richmond Y. M. C. A. unimiteds won the chance to play in he semi-finals by defeating Oakland by a score of 21 to 8.

The members of the localunlimited quintet are: Al Lindstedt, Ugo Baschetti, Merle Baskett, Ivor Pimm, Ernie Johnson, George Miller and Carl Drexel.

WELTERS AWAIT SOUND OF GONG

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—Training for Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion ,and Young Corbett III of Fresno will come to a close this afternoon with a heavy workout, and only light limbering-up exercises will be gone through tomorrow, after which the boxers will rest up until they are called into the ring on Saturday afternoon at the local ball park for their ten round match under the auspices of the Monarch Athletic club.

Fields has worked out like a real champion the past few days and seems to have mustered the art of fighting southpaws. A smart head, the champion, has studied the style of Corbett closely and is certain that he will have no trouble subduing his most persistent challenger.

Corbett has been working on his punch for this fight. The Raisin City southpaw knows that he must win by a knockout and will go into the ring with a do-or-die spirit. He has no fear of Fields and says he will meet the latter at his own game of trading punches. If he does what a whale of a battle it will be.

Large delegations of fans will attend the show, as Promoter Ancil Hoffman has received orders for thousands of seats from interior fans, as well as those of this city. He estimates the gate at $7,500 and the attendance around the 25,000 mark.

Betting favors the champion, which is only natural. To reach the top one must have something on the ball. Corbett, however, has many supporters who are grabbing the short end as the day of the fight rolls around.

Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

FONG WAN
Eminently Successful Herbalist

2946 Morgan Ave.
Oakland, Cal.
Nov. 19, 1929.
THE FONG WAN HERB CO.
Dear Mr. Fong—I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herbs prepared by you.

I had a complication of Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pains in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as if there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned the throat, was returned to the mouth.

This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year. During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any appreciable results. Both decided that an operation was necessary.

By good fortune, I came into contact with a man whom you had treated successfully for an Ulcerated Stomach, and he strongly urged me to take your treatment. This I did.

Results were noticeable the very first week, and now, after six weeks, I am entirely free from the terrible stabbing pains and the soreness over my Liver. My digestion is good. The old feeling of lassitude has completely disappeared and I feel much brighter and more energetic than I have for years.

I am most happy to strongly recommend the herbs of the Fong Wan Herb Co. as prepared by you.

Wishing you unbounded success, and again thanking you for what you have done for me, I am
Very cordially yours,
CYRIL MAW.

UPON RECEIPT OF POSTAGE WE WILL MAIL YOU A BOOK ON HERBS. (10c within the first zone or 15c for more distant zones.)

The GREEN GODDESS
by LOUISE JORDAN MILN

Copyright, 1922, by Frederick A. Stokes Company

"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss, is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

After five years of marriage, Major Anthony Crespin, stationed in India, and his wife are estranged, due to Crespin's drinking and running after women. Transferred to Dehra Dun, his wife Lucilla makes friends with Dr. Basil Traherne, an old schoolfellow of the Major's, and often goes flying with him. In a drunken stupor, Major Crespin disgraces his regiment and is about to be dismissed from the service when Traherne, although in love with the Major's wife, pleads for him. He asks that Crespin be given another chance to fight his craving for drink and promises to help him conquer it.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

"Yes, you can," Agnew retorted. "I've seen it done—in India. Well, she never gave a sign, not once, that I ever saw or heard of, through it all. She just froze—died, as it were, and lived on dead. I wonder how much of it all you know, Traherne, or have heard?"

"I've heard very little. I've avoided hearing, as much as I could. But I can read between the lines a bit."

"Well, you're going to hear it now, man, what I know of it. And when you've heard, I don't think you'll ask me to be easy on Major Crespin."

"It seems Crespin took too much once or twice when he was a subaltern, but it never got to me. Soon after he got his company Crespin went home on long leave, and when he came back he brought his wife with him. I'm always a bit anxious when one of my youngsters does that. Marriage is a damned queer thing. Sometimes it sinks; sometimes it smashes; sometimes it jogs on in a dull dog-trot; sometimes it glides on oil. That was what their marriage did at first. Couldn't ask for a better husband, and no woman in her senses would ask for a more devoted husband. No nonsense about it but just downright happiness and the very best sort of good-understanding. Then"—the old soldier's mouth hardened—"I'm damned if he didn't begin to tilt it up—and then went right off the deep end in B. and S., and fizz and Johnnie Walker. She was the last to know it, of course. I saw it, when no old fool could help seeing it—and I did my damnedest. What I haven't said to Tony Crespin on the subject wouldn't be of much use in a temperance campaign. We stood by him. He pulled up, then he slid back. Not once, not twice—again and again. We were with her, my wife and I, when the cable came saying her father had died. She didn't say a word, just read the blamed thing over two or three times, then laid it down on the tea-tray, and pushed the cups and saucers about a bit. But her face! I shall not forget her face. Mary took up that blasted cable and read it, and then she handed it to me, and I read it. We didn't know what to do. It wasn't often my wife didn't know what to do. We knew she didn't want us to stay, didn't want any one near her, and we couldn't bear to leave her. She was delicate then. Mary said something to her. She didn't seem to hear. But presently she said, 'Where is Tony? Please find him for me. I want Tony.' And just as she'd said it, Crespin lurched in—lurched. Not half-seas over, but drunk! So drunk—he reeked—and when he saw me he giggled. And that was how she learned it."

Major Crespin

Kathleen Agnew's garden was the show place of Dehra Dun.

But Colonel Agnew, gazing at it all, saw none of it. Presently he said, without turning even his head, "And her baby—the girl—was born that night."

Agnew pitched his cigar out on the jasmine, came back to his chair, and lit another. "She forgave him, of course, or I suppose she did. I tell you, all along she never has said a word nor given a sign. He kept straight for a bit after that, but he didn't keep on keeping straight. Every once and again, he'd break out—I don't say he went the whole hog often. But he sipped and sipped—a damned sight more than was good for him—or for her. I've told you how that poor child learned, she'd married a downright hard boozer. The way she found out about women wasn't much pleasanter."

"I'd rather——" Traherne began.

The Colonel ignored it. "It was in Pindi. He had a month's leave, and had a bungalow there. There was a show there just then. Some of the troupe put up at the Dak Bungalow—among them a Jezebel they called 'the leading lady.' You've heard of Terese Carter?"

"No."

"Thought every one had. Hadn't much reputation as an actress, but more than enough as a — woman. One morning, early, Mrs. Crespin had been making her own bazaar, and she went into the Dak to ask about a dhursi's character. She got Crespin's instead. The rooms open off of the dining-room: Terese Carter, in a thin sort of thing, with all her red hair loose about her, and her door pretty well open, the cotton curtain drawn back, was sprawled on her bed, and Crespin was half-sitting on it on the bed, with a lot of the woman's red hair held up to his face, and a sick-sheep look in his damned eyes. Mrs. Crespin stood stock-still, Mrs. Lawson said—Dick Lawson's wife was with her, and saw it all—and watched them, then just moved on, and did her errand. She never said a word to Mrs. Lawson, or let her say one word to her—and nobody knew what she said to Crespin afterwards—if she did. At Sumnee there never had been any hint of that sort of thing in Crespin. Well, Miss Terese Carter wasn't the last. There have been others since—more or less flagrant. We could see the breach widen—and could only stand by, and watch it widen, and the misery grow and grow stonier in her face. Now, Dr. Traherne, what have you got to say for Major Crespin?" The Colonel brought his clenched fist down on the table. "Rather a black, rotten story, eh?"

CHAPTER V

"VERY—rotten." Traherne replied, "and sad."

"Got anything more to say for Major Crespin?"

"Yes. This. When I was a boy at Harrow, about the youngest there, Antony Crespin was my fag-master. He was jolly decent to me. Every one liked him. He was prime at sports; and at everything he had the pluck of a dozen, and he was absolutely straight, and scrupulously fair always. But he always had a hunted look in his eyes. I saw it then, without understanding it in the least. I understand it now. And I knew that Crespin was unhappy.

"And I knew one other thing about him. He almost never spoke of his people. But I knew, somehow, that he worshipped his mother, and very much less than worshipped his father. He used to write to her all the time—oftener than any other boy wrote to any one. She came to see him two or three times while he and I were both there. His joy when he knew that she was coming, and his pride and devotion when she did come—I remember it! She was as beautiful as her picture, sir—and she seemed as fond and proud of him as he was of her. He took me home with him for a week-end once. It didn't take to Mr. Crespin—couldn't have said why not: he was decent to me. But I thought there was an undertone of boorishness in the way he spoke to his wife, a mean look in his eyes. And I felt sure that Tony and his mother were happier together when Mr. Crespin was not there. I gathered that the boy did not respect the man. Sunday was all right—till dinner. Mrs. Crespin looked queer when she came into the drawing-room. By the time we'd finished fish her face was red, and Tony's was the color of chalk. Mr. Crespin scarcely spoke, but made a capital meal, and watched his wife with a bad smile on his face all the time. Before the poultry was served, I understood—couldn't help it. Her voice was thick, her hand unsteady, and her face flamed. She didn't eat much, but she drank and her husband twice reminded the butler to fill her glass. When she pushed back her chair, and rose to leave us, she lurched. Tony drew his mother's arm through his, and led her from the room as if she had been a queen!"

Colonel Agnew cleared his throat. "Do you mean?" he began. "Do you believe—"

"I believe, sir, that Antony Crespin's mother was a nice woman who needed help she didn't get, as I believe that Major Crespin needs help that I can perhaps give him and help him to help himself."

"I tell you—" Agnew broke in hotly.

were made ill and three died.

"In 1928 I'd been employed as a chemist's assistant in the Guggenheim Laboratories in New York. I hoped to be sent to South America for the company, and when I wasn't I quit.

Poisoned For Test

"Then one night I came back to the place. There was a new watchman on duty, but he let me in. I wanted to test the cyanide I had with me so I overpowered the man. I forced him to drink two cups of coffee into which I had put some of the death potion. It didn't seem to affect him, so I placed some on the muzzle of my revolver and forced the gun down his throat. Then he lost consciousness. Two truck drivers arrived then, but I decided just to rob them."

Baker fled from New York and lived a virtual hermit's life in a shack on the outskirts of Detroit. Curiosity of Thomas Smith, a rookie New York detective who came here to bring a captive back east finally resulted in his capture. Officers casually pointed out to Smith the shack in which the recluse lived. Smith decided to look into the case.

Found By Picture

He went to the shack where he found a photograph of Baker, who was not at home. In New York the picture tallied with a photograph in the rogue's gallery there of one James Baker, wanted in connection with the Gaw murder. Baker's arrest here followed.

Physicians said Baker was suffering with violent paranoia, a form of mental aberration. Police called him "one of the most dangerous homicide maniacs the country has harbored in years."

Advices from Warren, Ohio, meanwhile, said that no one there remembered him or his father-in-law, while word from Houston said there were no records of the death of a man named Honeycutt, as described in Baker's confession.

SCOPES CLAIMS BRIDE IN S.A.

MARACAIBO, Venezuela, Feb. 20—(U.P.)—John T. Scopes of Dayton, Tenn, central figure in the famous Tennessee evolution trial five years ago, has taken up geology and matrimony.

He is employed here as a scientist in the geological department of the Venezuela Gulf Oil company. So was Miss Mildred Walker. They met and married Feb. 3.

Scopes, who is now 29, was tried at Dayton, Tenn., in 1925 on a charge of having taught evolution in the Dayton high school contrary to the state anti-evolution law. He was defended by Clarence Darrow and others and prosecuted by the late William Jennings Bryan. He was found guilty.

CHICAGO WAR ON GANGS OPENS

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—UP—Actual fight against Chicago's rapacious and murderous racketeers was started tonight by the commerce association's secret crime committee of seven millionaires.

The committeemen, working on the thesis that practically every business in the city pays tribute in one way or another to the machine-gunning and bomb-throwing gangsters, decided appropriately enough to use the racketeers' own methods in driving them out.

In effect, Chicago's businessmen will pay their millions "for protection" to the committee, rather than to the criminals themselves. The committee, in turn, will use the money to prosecute the gangsters, the racketeers, the crooked politicians and all the assorted shady characters that have combined to give Chicago an unsavory reputation throughout the world.

Committee Named

The association's secret committee was appointed two weeks ago when a new outbreak of crime, ranging from murder and bombings to extortion and holdups, threatened to submerge the city in a further orgy of criminal activity.

The committee, it was learned tonight, will start immediately its collection of a million dollar fund with which to gather jury-proof evidence against the city's legion of crooks.

The latter rank from fake organizers of unions who collect from garages, filling stations, dry cleaners and even bootblacks, to bogus builders' protective league workers who manage to collect graft in one form or another from almost every structure that is erected in the city.

Bribe Charged

While his committee was preparing plans for publication, United States Congressman Stanley H. Kunz and his son, Stanley, Jr., were ordered to appear in court Monday to face confidence game charges.

Both were accused by government prosecutors of accepting $400 from a laobrer after promising to get him a job on the police force.

Prominent Men Of Speedways Meet In L. A.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20.—There are two major names to conjure with in the automobile speed world in so far as engineering is concerned, and those two names are as follows:

Harry A. Miller, of Los Angeles.

Frederick S. Duesenberg, of Indianapolis.

Wherever you go to attend professional automobile races, whether on the speedways or dirt tracks of America, or the speedway or grand-prix road courses of Europe, you will find Duesenberg or Miller cars entered. And if they aren't entered under those names, the chances are that cars entered under some other name were in reality designed and turned out either by Miller or Duesenberg.

Consequently the racing world considered it a most high tribute to California's racing gasoline, Richfield, when Fred Duesenberg, on a recent visit to the Pacific coast, met his friendly competitor, Harry Miller, at a Richfield service station and the two consented to pose for Richfield press photos.

"We may disagree on a few things in engineering," laughed Harry Miller, as the two seated themselves at the station and began whittling sticks, a la Henry Ford, "but we don't disagree on gasoline and oil, do we Fred?"

Fred slashed a long shaving, grinned at Harry and nodded in agreement.

Present at the conference between Miller and Dusenberg was Ed Wintergust, racing representative for Richfield, and a veteran expert of motor racing. Both Dusenberg and Miller assured Wintergust that cars entered in their names at Indianapolis on Memorial Day—America's grand prize—500 mile classic—will be powered by Richfield-Ethyl gasoline.

her cell she immediately will start to climb the 13 steps to death. She will enter the death chamber a few feet from the scaffold, one guard on each side of her. On the platform a noose will be slipped over her head and adjusted by one of them.

After Mrs. Dugan has been given an opportunity to speak her last words, a guard will slip a black cap over her head. In the small group of spectators a third guard leaning casually against a water pipe, will touch a button.

A light will flash in a room adjoining and the executioner will release the trap. Dr. A. L. Love, prison physician, who testified he believed Mrs. Dugan insane, will peer through a small hole in the door of the room into which the body drops. Finally, he will enter and pronounce her dead.

Buried At Prison

Mrs. Dugan will be buried in the little graveyard of the prison. Her coffin will be more expensive than that provided by the prison. She earned the money for it by selling beads.

Mrs. Dugan showed no disappointment when Warden Lorenzo Wright, her "daddy man," told her the last effort to save her had failed. Calmly she received news of her attorney's decision that an attempt to have the Board of Pardons and Paroles reconsider her case would be futile. Later she broke down.

The last minute attempt to gain a stay of execution was planned when the verdict in the sanity hearing was not unanimous. Only 11 of the 12 men joined in the majority verdict that her mental condition justified execution.

NEW COMET DISCOVERED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 20.—UP—The discovery of a hitherto unknown comet by an amateur astronomer was announced by officials of the Harvard university observatory here tonight.

Discovery of the comet, according to an announcement, was made by L. C. Peltier of Delphos, Ohio, while engaged in experiments at the observatory last night.

The comet, although brilliant in appearance through powerful telescopes, is not visible to the naked eye, according to Professor Harlow Shapley.

Observers here said attempts would be made to photograph the new body, and indicated that considerable time would be devoted to its study.

Protect Your Furniture

A $1.25 to Rid Your Home of Moths May Save You Hundreds of Dollars.

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

When the sacks are empty, fill them again.
